CLEVELAND DEFENDED.

Senator Hill the Chief Magistrate's Champion.

GORMAN COMPARED TO CASSIUS.

The New York Senator Declares That Personal Considerations Will Not Prevent Him from Defending the President When He Is Unjustly Attacked.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Another dramatic scene occurred in the senate yesterday, but President Cleveland, instead of being, as on Monday, the object of attack by the leader of his party, was defended with vigor and vim. Mr. Cleveland's champion was his old political rival and enemy, Senator David B. Hill, of New York. The New York senator spoke for almost two hours to breathless galleries and a full senate. Several times the presiding officer was unable to restrain the enthusiasm his remarks evoked, notably when Mr. Hill declared that personal considerations would not prevent him from defending the president when he was unjustly attacked.

He defended Mr. Cleveland's letter, his right to send it and the sentiments it contained, and made a strong point against his adversaries when he pointed out that they criticised the president for siding with the house, when they admitted that they had used all their influence to induce him to interpose in behalf of the senate amendments to the tariff bill. He took up Mr. Gorman's argument and met it point by point in a manner satisfactory to himself at least, and concluded with a piece of satire that stung those on the floor and tickled the galleries unmeasurably.

Mr. Gorman on Monday compared Mr. Hill to Iago. Mr. Hill likened those who had joined in the assault on Mr. Cleveland to the conspirators who stabbed Cæsar to death at the foot of Pompey's statue in the Roman senate. Mr. Gorman he characterized as the lean and hungry Cassius; Mr. Jones as Marcus Brutus, the honest Brutus of the senate; Mr. Vest, who struck the first blow on Friday, as Casca; Mr. Voorhees as Trebonius, "rusty but earnest," and Mr. Harris as Metellus Cimber. They had struck down the president, Mr. Hill said, not that they loved Mr. Cleveland less, but that they loved the senate compromise more. "And yet," he concluded, and each word rang out like a hammer on an anvil, "I can say with Anthony, 'They are all honorable men.'"

Mr. Caffery, of Louisiana, who followed Mr. Hill with a brief speech, also gave to the country his share of the secrets of the political prison house. He detailed at length the manner in which the sugar schedule had been prepared, insisting that it was made by and in the interest of the sugar trust. He then gave way in order to give the Democrats a chance to caucus. Altogether it was a very exciting day, and the indications are that others as interesting will follow.

ANOTHER FRUITLESS CAUCUS.

Senators Hill, Irby and Murphy Refuse to Attend It.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—The Democrats of the senate yesterday afternoon decided to retire behind closed doors for the purpose of settling their differences on the tariff and trying to reach an amicable understanding. Senators Hill, Murphy and Irby were the only Democrats present at the Capitol who did not respond to the caucus call. The caucus continued for three hours, and without reaching any conclusion or taking a vote on any proposition, adjourned until today at 3 o'clock, when another meeting will be held.

The discussion of some points was very warm, and especially so just before adjournment, when Senator Vilas was speaking. Several senators interrupted him with questions, and criticized the course he was pursuing in the senate. This called forth equally tart replies from the Wisconsin senator, and there was prospect of the debate becoming more personal when, upon the suggestion of Senator Gorman, the adjournment took place.

The caucus merely served to emphasize the two facts that the Democratic senators are all anxious to pass a tariff bill, and that there are still wide differences as to the kind of a bill they can pass.

It was recognized from the beginning that Senator Vilas' motion to strike out the differential duty on sugar occupied a most important position in the present controversy, and several senators intimated that until there could be assurances of its withdrawal no conclusion could be reached in caucus.

Senators Blanchard and Caffery, of Louisiana, were both conspicuous in the caucus proceedings. Instead of showing any disposition to yield the sugar differential they asked that the conference committee be instructed to retain that feature and the 40 per cent. ad valorem, and to add the one tenth of a cent additional on sugar imported from countries paying a bounty on sugar, and also to continue for this year enough of the bounty paid under the McKinley law on sugar grown in this country to make the duty equal to two cents per pound. Senator Blanchard intimated plainly that if the sugar schedule was made less protective than at present that he would vote to postpone the bill indefinitely.

The only motion made during the afternoon was one by Senator Jarvis to send the bill back to conference without instructions, and while nothing like a vote was taken the indications now are that this motion will prevail in the end.

A SETBACK FOR DEBS.

His Answer Not a Sufficient Reply to the Charge of Contempt.

CHICAGO, July 25.—Debs and the other officers of the American Railway union met with a decided reverse yesterday in their fight against the prosecution for contempt in the United States court. The court decided that the answer filed by the defendants is not a sufficient reply to the charge of contempt, and the motion of their attorneys that they be discharged was overruled. Today the court is hearing the evidence of the government to sustain the contempt charge, and the defendants will be given the opportunity to produce evidence in their defense.

The decision of the court was announced by Judge Woods after he had conferred for a few minutes with his colleague, Judge Grosscup. Judge Woods said in substance: "It is true that a procedure like this is criminal technicality, but not essentially. It is an incident in the main case in equity under the bill filed by the government. No case has been cited here in which the federal courts have sustained the proposition put forward by the attorneys for the respondents. If anything should happen to change our minds during the further course of the case the defendants will have the benefit of the change."

During the discussion Edwin Walker, special counsel for the government, made the suggestion that it was within the power of the defendants to end the trouble by declaring the strike off. They are still in contempt, he said, and the government is in possession of information that the injunction is still being violated. Judge Woods said that if there are further violations of the injunction a supplemental information can be filed and the guilty parties will find themselves in a much worse position than they would otherwise be in. Attorney Gregory denied that it was within the power of his clients to declare the strike off.

Fatally Shot by Her Wronged Husband.

JOHNSTOWN, N. Y., July 25.—Samuel Mill, a glove cutter, residing the northern part of the village, after a night's debauch shot his wife in the breast with a twenty-two caliber revolver. The shot did not prevent her escape from the house, but as she ran to the house of a neighbor Mill pursued her and fired several times. Finally he put the revolver to his own breast and shot himself. Mills was arrested, but no attempt was made to extract the ball, as his condition was critical. Mrs. Mills is also in a dangerous condition and both will probably die. Mills had detected his wife in improper relations with a man named Dealer.

Would-be Lynchers Thwarted.

LAURAVILLE, Fla., July 25.—Early in the morning a mob of negroes, led by a negro preacher named Marshall, went to the house of Jack Thomas, colored, to lynch him for committing a rape on a negro girl. As the mob approached Thomas opened fire with a Winchester. His first shot killed Marshall, the preacher. Thomas continued firing, shooting down in succession six other members of the mob, four of whom are thought to be mortally wounded. The mob fired at Thomas without effect. Thomas has surrendered to the authorities.

The "Gentleman Burglar" on Trial.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., July 25.—The trial of Michael Sherlock, the Stockbridge "gentleman burglar," was commenced in the superior court here yesterday. District Attorney Gardner put in much evidence to prove Sherlock a member of the gang which robbed the Lennox rectory last November. Sherlock took the witness stand in his own defense, and beyond admitting that he was well acquainted with the men who are known to have participated in the Lennox rectory robbery he gave no important testimony.

Serious Accident to Baseballists.

LANCASTER, Pa., July 25.—Rain stopped yesterday's baseball game between the Philadelphia and Lancaster State League clubs at the beginning of the fourth inning, when the score stood 5 to 1 in favor of Philadelphia. The fourth inning opened with a serious accident to Roth and Foulkrod, of the Philadelphia club, the men colliding with terrific force in running for a fly ball. Both men were knocked senseless, and it was ten minutes before Foulkrod regained consciousness and was carried off the field.

Thieving Bankers Get Five Years.

DENVER, July 25.—Judge Hallett, in the United States court, overruled the motion of J. F. Cochran and A. R. Sayre for a new trial and sentenced them to five years each in the United States prison at Joliet Ills. Cochrane and Sayre were the president and cashier, respectively, of the First National bank at Del Norte and the offense for which they were arrested and convicted was sending false reports of the condition of the bank to the comptroller of the currency.

It Cured Mother and Daughter.

BETHANY, N. Y., June 3, 1885.—"Since my wife commenced the use of Gilmore's wine she has steadily improved, until now her health is restored. She says she cannot keep house without this wine. It also cured my daughter, who was troubled with suppression of the menses. She had run over ten weeks and took only one bottle before she was cured."—Philip G. Burke. All druggists sell Gilmore's Aromatic Wine at $1 per bottle.

TWO DESPERATE STRIKERS.

They Kill Two Deputies and Defy a Posse Sent to Arrest Them.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 25.—War has broken out again among the striking miners. Since 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon two deputy sheriffs have been killed, a third fatally wounded and a fourth badly hurt. Two desperate strikers did it all, and they are now surrounded on the mountain near Coalburg, refusing to surrender. The officers are determined to take them dead or alive, and will close in on them as soon as more military reaches the scene.

Yesterday afternoon Deputy Sheriff Charley Cole and James Smith went to the residence of R. H. Hudson, near Coalburg, ten miles from here, to arrest his son George on a warrant charging participation in the Pratt mines riot, when half a dozen negroes and deputies were killed by strikers ten days ago. The younger Hudson drew a gun and began firing. His father, who was with him, joined in the shooting. The officers also fired, but the Hudsons were too quick for them, and Deputy Cole was shot in the breast and died three hours later. The younger Hudson killed both the officers. The elder Hudson was wounded in the hand. Smith lived long enough to tell the other officers who came to the rescue the story of the killing.

After the killing the Hudsons fled to the woods, both heavily armed. A posse was organized at Coalburg and another sent from Birmingham on a special train, followed by troops. The first posse surrounded the Hudsons on the mountain a mile from the scene of the first encounter. The Hudsons refused to surrender, and fired on the posse from ambush. Two of the posse fell, Buck Gay being mortally wounded and James Woolson seriously hurt. The Hudsons again fled. As soon as reinforcements arrived the entire place was surrounded and orders sent for more troops. The escape of the desperadoes is impossible.

THE WAR IN COREA.

Corean Troops Repulsed by the Japanese Garrison at Seoul.

SHANGHAI, July 25.—A dispatch received here from Nagasaki, on the southwest side of the Island of Kioo-Sioo, Japan, says that a detachment of Corean troops, at the instigation of the Chinese resident, have attacked the Japanese garrison at Seoul, the capital of Corea, and were defeated. A later telegram says that a Japanese cruiser and a Chinese transport have been engaged, and that the cruiser sunk the transport.

Coreans and Chinese engaged in a battle on the 12th inst. with Tungsis' rebels and a large number were killed. It is reported that the Corean king has been kidnaped by the Japanese. The Chinese consul at Nagasaki has ordered all Chinese to leave their homes. Eight Japanese and three Chinese men-of-war and 20,000 troops are at Jenzen. Trouble is imminent at that place. Cholera is increasing at a fearful rate.

LONDON, July 25.—The Japanese legation in this city has received a dispatch confirming the news received by the way of Nagasaki of an attack of Corean troops upon the Japanese garrison at Seoul. The dispatch states that the palace guard were the agressors. It also states that the Corean troops at Seoul number 6,000 men, with several Gatling guns.

Rebuke for Maryland's Senators.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., July 25. — Queen Anne's county, a stronghold of Maryland Democracy, the native county of Senator Gibson, and formerly a firm supporter of Senator Gorman, yesterday in convention gave the Maryland senators a hard slap. The convention, held to elect delegates to the district congressional convention, adopted resolutions demanding that "the nominee of the district shall accord President Cleveland his full support and shall be sound on the tariff reform, as the people are not disposed to tolerate nominees who will not actively support true Democratic principles."

Impaled on a Wagon Tongue.

PATERSON, N. J., July 25.—James F. Foyle, a local agent of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, was killed by a team of horses owned by a farmer in Westwood, Bergen county. The horses were being exercised by William Mills, a liveryman, on West street, when they became frightened by an electric car and ran away. They rushed down a block and then collided with a small frame house on the corner of Mulberry and River streets, impaling Foyle, who stood with his back against the building, the tongue of the wagon penetrating his left shoulder.

A Madagascar Prince in Trouble.

LONDON, July 25.—A dispatch from Antananarivo, Madagascar, says that Prince Kakotomena, a nephew of Queen Kanavalona, assaulted a French soldier in the streets of that city recently and inflicted serious injuries upon him. The matter was brought to the attention of the French minister resident, and he has demanded that the prince be punished.

FELL TO THEIR DEATH.

Plunged Down Five Stories on a Broken Elevator.

THREE MEN KILLED, TWO INJURED.

The Victims Were Carrying Meal on the Elevator of a Brewery, and Disobeyed the Rules of the Establishment in Filling It with Human Freight.

NEW YORK, July 25.—The drum shaft of an elevator at Clauson & Price's brewery, One Hundred and Ninetieth street and Eleventh avenue, snapped in two yesterday afternoon, and the loaded elevator plunged down five stories. Three men were killed and two others seriously injured. The dead are: Louis Boes, 40 years old, skull fractured and neck broken; Bernard Schneider, 46 years old, skull and back broken; Anthony Karl, 45 years old, skull fractured. The injured are: Henry Hornebier, 30 years old, right leg fractured and injured internally; William Embeck, 36 years old, both legs fractured and injured internally.

Six men were engaged in piling up 100 pound sacks of meal on a 10x10 freight elevator, which is erected in the center of the brewery building. The elevator runs from the fifth floor to the basement. These men had to take the meal from the first floor to the wash house on the fifth. Under the platform of the elevator and across the shaft two heavy beams were placed, on which the elevator rested. These beams were to prevent any jarring as the men threw the heavy sacks of meal on the platform.

Twenty-five bags were piled up. Then five men jumped on top and the elevator was started toward the top of the building. The sixth man had gone back to get another sack, and as he returned with his burden he saw the elevator moving upward. The men on the elevator shouted derisively at him. He looked up the shaft, and as he did so there came a crackling sound and a loud crash. The elevator had dropped like a massive bit of lead, the two great beams which a minute before had supported the platform were crushed like match wood, and the elevator car with its load of life and death dropped to the cemented basement and shook the foundation of the building.

Of the five men on the loaded elevator car two were found dead. All lay in a heap together. The broken sacks had thrown out mounds of meal, which were quickly dyed with blood. The dreadful concussion had killed Boes and Karl instantly. Schneider was still breathing, but died a few minutes after he had been dragged out of the wreck.

Whether the machinery was defective or the load on the elevator too great has yet to be determined. On each floor through which the elevator passed was a notice prohibiting employes to ride on the elevator.

Indignant French Journalists.

PARIS, July 25.—In the chamber of deputies during the discussion of the clause in the government's anti-anarchist measure, providing for a restriction being placed upon the reports published of the trials of anarchists, Deputy Denoix remarked that the press should not be considered a privileged trade. Thereupon the newspaper men present in the gallery raised such a disturbance that the president of the chamber ordered the gallery to be cleared. Later the press representatives were invited to return, but declined to do so. The newspaper men drew lots to decide who should challenge M. Denoix.

Victims of the Nicol Disaster.

ASBURY PARK, July 25.—The body lying at Morris morgue, though badly mutilated, was identified yesterday as that of Theodore Sechliszer, of New York. Sechliszer was lost in the disaster to the tug James S. Nicol on Sunday, June 24. Another headless body was found at Tackannasz Lake by Captain Wardell, and a third, badly disfigured, near Seabright yesterday afternoon. The head of the latter was also missing and the body was decomposed.

WELLMAN'S EXPEDITION LOST.

It Is Believed His Vessel Has Been Crushed by Ice Floes.

LONDON, July 25.—Carl Siewers writes a letter to The Standard in which he announces that he is in receipt of advices from Norway that leave little doubt that the Wellman Arctic expedition is lost. Experienced skippers just returned from Spitzbergen seas express the same opinion, and Colonel Fielding, who accompanied Captain Nare's Arctic expedition in 1875, shares this belief. The Pall Mall Gazette is in receipt of similar advices from Tromsoe, all confirming the general belief in the fate of the expedition.

Arctic skippers report that the flow of pack ice and its density this summer would prove irresistible to any vessel, however strong. They believe that the Ragnvald-Jarl has been crushed in the ice, and express the belief that there is a remote chance that the members of the Wellman expedition have been saved by managing to escape on an ice floe, in which case they believe the explorers are in a most dangerous position, and they add that it is most probable that the Ragnvald-Jarl was crushed without warning.

Should the forebodings of the Arctic skippers prove true, and if the Ragnvald-Jarl was crushed without warning, it is probable that the members of the expedition were unable to take any large quantity of supplies with them upon the ice floe, even supposing that they succeeded in escaping thereto.

Mr. Fielden, owner of the yacht Saide, has received notice of Professor Oyen's distress from Captain Johansen, of the sloop Anna. Mr. Fielden instantly ordered the Saide to Dane Island, and she reached that spot the next day. Oyen was found in his bed in an almost dying condition. He had given up all hope of ever seeing the face of a human being again. Upon a table in the professor's quarters was found a letter containing bitter reproaches against Wellman, whom he accused of having left him in the lurch.

Mangled by a St. Bernard Dog.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—A full grown St. Bernard dog attacked and nearly killed 6 year-old George Barnett. The maddened animal had thrown the child down and was viciously biting it when the child's father, attracted by the screams of his son, came to the rescue. With a baseball bat he drove the dog away, but when Mrs. Barrett attempted to carry the child into the house the dog returned and again attacked the boy. There ensued a terrible battle between the man and the dog, during which Mr. Barrett, in attempting to hit the animal, struck his wife, who was trying to protect the child, knocking her insensible. Finally an officer killed the savage beast. The child is in a precarious condition.

Race War in Mississippi.

JACKSON, Miss., July 25.—News of a race war in Simpson county, Miss., has reached here. The negroes are alleged to have held several secret meetings recently, at which they entered into a conspiracy to murder the white people and burn their homes. One of these meetings was attended by white men who secreted themselves and heard the plot. A negro woman urged her auditors to murder the white men and said the negro women would look after the white women and children. The whites took several of the negro leaders out and gave them severe whippings. The mob then took the negro woman to a swamp, and no trace of her has been found since. It is believed that she was lynched.

Illinois Town Devastated by Flames.

CHENOA, Ills., July 25.—A great conflagration wiped out the finest part of the business portion of this place yesterday afternoon, starting in Ballinger's livery stable. All of the business houses in two blocks on both sides of the street lying east of the Alton and south of the Toledo, Peoria and Western were destroyed. This is the same ground that was burned over four years ago, and nearly all the buildings were new and contained valuable stocks. The total loss is not less than $70,000. J. T. McKenzie, a tailor, leaped from the second story window and was impaled on an iron picket. He will die.

Fire and Explosion in New York.

NEW YORK, July 25.—A big fire broke out last night in the dry goods district and did a damage of probably $75,000. It started in the five story brick building at 21 Walker street, occupied by Louis Gordon, shirt manufacturer. Just how the fire started is a mystery, but an explosion which shattered all the windows in the building, as well as several in buildings on the other side of the street, preceded a burst of flame which lit up the entire block. The stock of Mr. Gordon was totally destroyed. He places his loss at $60,000.

Relief in Six Hours.

Distressing Kidney and Bladder diseases relieved in six hours by the "New Great South American Kidney Cure." This new remedy is a great surprise on account of its exceeding promptness in relieving pain in the bladder, kidneys, back and every part of the uninary passages in male or female. It relieves retention of water and pain in passing it almost immediately. If you want quick relief and cure this is your remedy. Sold by J. E. Mills, druggist, Middletown, N. Y.

The usual treatment of catarrh is very unsatisfactory, as thousands can testify. Proper local treatment is positively necessary to success, but many, if not most, of the remedies in general use afford but temporary relief. A cure certainly cannot be expected from snuffs, powders, douches and washes. Ely's Cream Balm, which is so highly commended, is a remedy which combines the important requisites of quick action, specific curative power, with perfect safety and pleasantness to the patient. The druggists all sell it.

REFORMATORY ABUSES

More Damaging Evidence Against Superintendent Brockway.

BRUTAL TREATMENT OF A BOY.

Handcuffed to a Ring in a Cell for Seven Days and Confined in the "Rest Cure" for Seventy-two Days—Kicked in the Face by Brockway.

ELMIRA, N. Y., July 25.—At yesterday's session of the Reformatory investigating committee, an ex-convict, whose name is omitted at the request of the commissioners, admitted that he had lied when charged with improper conduct, and that he had implicated innocent men, who, he said, were sent to Auburn and made to serve out their maximum terms. The witness was a respectable and intelligent man, and proved that it was possible for one prisoner to benefit himself to the injury of others by adroit manipulation and lying.

Frank Wallace, the Auburn transfer whose letters caused both the reformatory investigations, is a bright looking boy. He was punished and transferred to Auburn because of his refusal to tell Superintendent Brockway where his relatives lived, desiring to save his mother from disgrace. Wallace again told his story, giving the details as have already been published. He told of being handcuffed to a ring in a cell and being left there seven days, and of being confined in the "rest cure" seventy-two days in a screened cell, being fed on hash and bread and water. Before beginning his testimony he asked that he be sent back to Auburn as soon as possible.

Judge Gilbert offered in evidence the correspondence in the case between Wallace, Judge Seaver and Brockway, but Mr. Dayo admitted only the latter's letter. When cross-examined Wallace refused to answer any of the questions put to him except that he lived in New York city with his mother, and that his father was dead. Wallace admitted having attempted to escape from the police court in Buffalo when sentenced by jumping from a three story window and receiving injuries from which he has not yet fully recovered. Witness said that while sitting in a chair on the guard room floor Mr. Brockway kicked him in the face.

Judge Seaver, of Erie county, who sentenced Wallace to the reformatory, was called. Judge Gilbert again attempted to introduce the entire correspondence in the case, but all was excluded save the letter from the prisoner to Judge Seaver.

William Facey, an Auburn transfer, next told his story. He said he was punished in the bath room in January, 1893; that Brockway hit him in the chest, and told him that he was a nice kind of a man. He was paddled four times, and at last admitted anything they asked him. On these statements he was transferred to Auburn prison.

"Were the statements you made true?" asked Judge Gilbert.

"They were false," replied the witness. He swore that a scar on his left shin was the result of punishment received, but the defense again introduced the records to prove he had it when he entered the reformatory.

Will Start Up With New Men.

PHILLIPSBURG, Pa., July 25.—The committee sent to Philadelphia on Sunday to confer with the Derwind-White company from the Horatzdale district, failed to return yesterday, though private dispatches received stated that the company would not pay more than forty cents a ton for three feet thick coal, with a better price for lower grade coal. The mass meeting called to hear the report of the committee was therefore postponed until this afternoon. An earnest effort will be made to start all the mines with new men. The trial of the twenty-four miners at Osceola, charged with being implicated in the burning of the Imperial mine tipple, was continued today.

Vigilant Wins Another Race.

ROCHE'S POINT, Ireland, July 25.—The twelfth race between the Vigilant and Britannia took place yesterday. The prize competed for was $500 offered by the Royal Cork Yacht club, and the distance was fifty miles. The Vigilant won in 9h., 51 min., 59 secs. The Britannia's time was 9h., 56 min., 31 secs. During the race the jaws of the Vigilant's gaff were broken and she finished the race under extremely unfavorable conditions. It is now feared that she may not be able to race again until Saturday.

THE FURY OF THE SUN

UNTEMPERED BY COOLING CLOUDS AND BREEZES, IT IS TERRIBLE.

A Trail of Prostration, Insanity and Death Left In the Luminary's Track on Each Day of Excessive Heat—Sultry Weather Has Also Its Humorous Side.

It was midnight at Washington, 1 o'clock at Boston, 11 o'clock at Chicago.

In hundreds of morning newspaper offices thousands of editors, reporters, copy readers, proofreaders and compositors sweltered and toiled and grumbled. Some of them swore. For it was a hot night from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

"Mr. Slashitt," said a certain night editor to the telegraph editor as the latter unrolled a huge bundle of telegrams written on thin "manifold paper," "has 'indications' come in yet?"

ALONE WITH HER GRIEF AND HER DEAD.

"Yes," was the weary reply: "here it is, 'Clear: slight, variable winds; rising temperature.'"

"Heaven defend us!" moaned the night editor. "Such weather this year of great news is enough to drive a man out of the business."

Conversations somewhat similar took place about the same time in nearly every morning newspaper office between the oceans, but everywhere the men worked and sweltered steadily away as if their lives depended on the exertions of the hour. In time in every office the daily miracle of getting the paper to press and out upon the street was accomplished, and the tired workers went home in the gray of the morning to sleep or to toss, as the case might be, the long hot day through.

A little later the sun rose out of the Atlantic's green waves. Little recked Old Sol of the suffering his burning rays were that day to inflict upon devoted humanity. Before his fierce light certain mists that had gathered over night in some localities were dissipated like a breath, and ere the day was an hour old those who labor in the light were sweltering and grumbling as the men on the morning papers had sweltered and grumbled the night before.

The sun's first victim on that awful day was a little babe, a child of the tenements. All night long its grief stricken mother had watched and tended it as it lay, scarcely conscious, in the stifling little room under the metal roof which she called "home." All night long her soul had gone out in despairing prayers for showers and cooling breezes. Too poor even to buy a paper to see for herself what the "indications" were, as she was too poor to take the child to the country or the seashore, she asked information of a neighbor slightly better off than herself. When the words that had been wearily read in the newspaper office a few hours before were repeated to her, her heart sank. At 9 o'clock her forebodings were justified, for the frail life left the child's body, and the poor mother was alone under the metal roof with her grief and her dead. Some who knew of both said the child was better out of its misery, but she could not see it so.

The next victim was a sturdy young farmer, broad of shoulder, clean of limb, erect of carriage. He went out into the fields to toil in the fierce heat with an unwonted lassitude stealing over him, for he had not slept well the night before, and the sultriness of the morning had destroyed his desire for food. At 10 o'clock he fell fainting in the field and was tenderly borne away by hard handed companions. But he recovered his health and strength, for he was not one of those who, when the sweltering season came, seek to fortify themselves by fighting the heat of the sun with additional heat of alcoholic drinks.

Of those who thought in this way to weather the day the victims numbered hundreds by the time the sun had reached the meridian and thousands before his course was run. As he wheeled along above the parched and panting land a wave of prostration and death and insanity followed him as the tides of the ocean follow the moon. All day long the doctors were busy. Ambulances with clanging bells clattered over city pavements, and hospital wards that were nearly empty at dawn were crowded before night fell. Some victims, driven frantic, killed themselves rather than endure further torture.

The strokes were not all drawn from and her time, are not the only things that you save, if she uses Pearline. You'll get your clothes washed without that ruinous rub, rub, rub that wears them out quickly. It's a gain for her and a gain for you, and they're washed just as safely as they could be with the best soap—only a great deal more easily.

But see for yourself that what she uses is Pearline—the original washing-compound; the best: the one proved to be perfectly harmless. All these washing-powders that you're warned against are only imitations of Pearline. 466 JAMES PYLE, New York.

"America's Greatest Men and Women."

AMERICA'S GREATEST MEN AND WOMEN.

AMERICA'S GREATEST MEN AND WOMEN.

MR. WILSON TALKS.

MY Name is Wilson; I do an insurance business on LaSalle street, in Chicago Ill., and I live in Evanston, Ill. Evanston is what was originally a scattering population on a pretty point on Lake Michigan, esteemed years ago far from the city of Chicago, but now one of the varied towns which may go within it by vote of the population.

I am married and have a wife and one child. That child is a boy (I suppose I should feel the same solicitude if it was a girl), and I have a father's natural fancies as to what must be the best thing to give that child the right kind of intelligence, and so divert his course that he may succeed in life. I have studied a great deal upon the subject. My own experience would not be of great value, because I have succeeded only to the limit of the average man and am barely established; still, I own the house and lot upon which I live, and am feeling perfectly safe in meeting the exigencies of the year. I want the boy to take a broader view than I did, to be a bigger man in the world. I have studied how to teach him to do that, and he has done pretty well, as far as the preliminaries go. Now, I have thought over what I should say to him and have sometimes been puzzled. I could not very well tell him what to do. I wanted to tell him what I needed but what I did not learn myself when I was of his age, and what my father did not know how to tell me, or else was not thoughtful enough to do so. I wanted to tell him how to follow the example of those who have succeeded at the present time and under the circumstances which ordinarily affect a young man struggling in this Republic established on this comparatively new world to-day. I wanted to tell him just what he had better do to get along well, and to point out to him what had been done by the people who were successful at the present time.

Of course, the record of the people of any time past would not be of so much value, because circumstances must necessarily have been different when they were alive. I feel confident, though, that if I could learn, some way and somehow, what the people who are so successful to-day have done and how they did it, I could give to my boy such advice as would make his own life at least as far removed from failure as justified by the natural ability he may possess.

I looked around for some authority which I might consult in order to give him the facts most essential with this idea of mine in mind, but I could find none until I discovered that a great publishing firm in Chicago had decided to bring out a book giving the photographs of all the people who are prominent in America to-day. Here was what I wanted. The book, as I have learned, is going to be published in 16 parts, 16 pages to each, with a recent photograph on each page of some active leading American man or woman of to-day, while underneath appears the story of that same person's life—the story telling what that person did, and how the ends attained were eventually accomplished. Here was what I wanted; here was what I needed in various ways; here was what I was certainly seeking in order to obtain the information with which to educate my boy and secure for him that knowledge which will give him a source of thought and make him prominent in the world.

I have the first sheets of this work. It is a graphic story of America's Greatest Men and Women, told in each instance on a single page underneath a photograph of recent date, which conveys to the eye an idea of what that person is. To me the photograph tells even more than the suggestive record beneath; and yet it is odd how in each instance the correct story corresponds with the expression upon the face which is reproduced in the portrait above. I do not know how the series will end. I know very little about this new feature of the newspaper people; I know nothing about the publishers and their expectations, but I do know this: that if the series so begun should be continued to its practical, ordinary good sense end—and I don't care whether that will include 200 or 700 of America's Greatest Men and Women, which is the title of the book—I do know this, that for the ordinary, active and alert business man—I will certainly say far more for the student or the literary man, or the politician or the statesman—for all these I will say it will be simply the most valuable and the most remarkable book produced in modern history. The wonder is that some one has not thought of it before. Yet no one seems to have done so since the days of Plutarch. Plutarch knew something. That shrewd old fellow knew that all who would get out of the drift, all who would accomplish great things, wanted to know every detail of the lives of those who had better luck or more courage or a broader brain than their fellows; but I am no authority on these points. I only know that there is produced a second Plutarch's Lives, that its biographies are shrewd, graphic and curt, and written without bias and without prejudice. I only know that there was a Plutarch—God bless the old fellow—and that there is this modern work.

This is the work I am going to give to my boy. I am going to make him read it thoroughly. The work is announced as consisting of 16 Parts, with 16 pages and 16 photographs in each part, and when bound, the whole series will make a great volume of 256 pages, the like of which has never been equaled. It is the story of the personal character of the men and women who are making the nation's history at this particular time. What a work this is! Do you imagine that I would miss it for my boy, or, incidentally, for myself?

human ranks. Beautiful carriage horses, with arching necks, overdriven by careless, heartless drivers, fell in their tracks, and so did patient, toiling truck horses. Triumphant Sol that day spared neither man nor beast who ventured to brave his fury without taking the proper precautions. A messenger boy and the opulent president of a trust to whom the lad was carrying a telegram yielded at almost the same moment; bare armed women bending over washboards and suds and favorites of fashion attired in thin white garments, laborers lugging hods up ladders, and, stripped to the waist, undergoing industrial agonies in refineries and iron mills, were among those who fell. There were more victims among the poor than the rich, for the poor, in the nature of things, were not so often provided with the buckler of health and strength for defense and were forced to remain at work in spite of the danger.

One who fell was a slender, handsome youth who was on his way to the deathbed of his mother. Another was a "well groomed" man of the world who was to be that day married to a sweet girl who never knew how much she ought to thank the sun for his work her whole life through. Still another had fallen heir to a fortune and was about to enter into possession thereof. Yet another sat in a locomotive cab over whirling, speeding drivers and held the fate of hundreds of passengers by "the limited" in the hand that grasped the lever till the sun forced it to relax its hold. Perhaps the saddest case of all on that day of death was the termination of the life of a gentle, kindly soul whose energies had long been devoted to alleviating the miseries of others. If he had chosen, he might have fled to the sands or the heights, for he was not lacking for money, as were so many of those whom he visited from day to day.

But he thought not of himself. From dawn till midday he threaded his way down the narrow, odorous, heated alleys of a great city, climbed the narrow, rickety stairways that led to the homes of the poor and the suffering, and each squalid abode visited was somewhat the better because he had been there. In one place he left fruits and delicacies, in the next money and in some only kind words, but everywhere he was welcomed and his return long desired. It had never occurred to him that he ran personal risks in doing what he conceived to be his duty, though it often had to his friends, who tried in vain to control him. It is doubtful if he would have swerved from his course if he had known the certain result, though he might have taken more precautions and so avoided the worst; but, ever careful of the safety and comfort of others, he was heedless of his own. It was a little after noon that a strange pallor spread over his fine features and a strange faintness seized upon his every faculty. The poverty stricken beneficiary with whom he was talking noted the change, and, awestruck, shrieked for help. When it arrived, the heart's deadly work had been accomplished, and the poor and the needy of the narrow, noisome streets he was wont to visit had lost the best friend they had ever had.

But the day was not one of misery quite unmixed. In fact, it was a day of great hilarity to many persons. Some paddled about in the waters of the sea, of lakes and of rivers. Some swung idly in hammocks shaded by trees or the wide roofs of zephyr swept verandas. Others, with rods and flies, sought the shade of forests, beneath which flowed limpid and fish filled streams. Yet others sailed the waves and sang and shouted and laughed defiance to the torrid tyrant of the skies. But even these were fain to consult the mercury, and even these bought evening papers eagerly that they might scan the noonday "indications" for the coming 12 hours. The portly ice dealer, the acquisitive ice cream vender, the smiling seller of soft drinks, the barkeepers and those who sold watermelons struggled and hustled the whole day through, vainly trying to furnish their cooling wares fast enough to meet the demand.

Sing Low and Wun Lung and laundry men and laundry women laughed with joy as they took note generally of wilting collars and cuffs and shirt fronts and figured upon the extra profits that would come to them because of the day's perspiration. The humorists of the comic weeklies melted and wrote jokes about Christmas and the north pole, and the decks of the excursion steamers were crowded with those who sought relief, if only for but a few brief hours.

When the night editor got to his desk at 6 o'clock in the evening, the city editor said:

"I've had that new reporter, Snaps, at work all day getting up a comic special on wilted collars and other timely heat topics. He'll have a column and turn, maybe two, and Phabers, the artist, has some corking pictures for it. Then I've got four men out on the drowning of 40 or 50 bathers down at the beach. That ought to be good for all we can get. And I've ordered a 2,000 word special about a river excursion boat capsizing with 100 on board. Don't know how many are lost yet. The police headquarters man telephones that 67 have been overcome about town, and I've got men out for a general heat story for what it is worth. Going to be another all fired hot evening, I guess. I hope you'll get through all right. Good night." J. D. MARSHALL.

A MIRACLE IN MISSOURI.

THE ACHIEVEMENTS OF MEDICAL SCIENCE FAR MORE WONDERFUL THRN THE MAGIC OF THE EAST.

The Remarkable Experience of Post Master Woodson, of Panama, Mo.—For Ten Years a Cripple—To-day A Well and Hearty Man.

From the Kansas City Times.

The people of Rich Hill, Mo., and vicinity, have recently been startled by a seeming miracle of healing. For years one of the best known men in Bates and Vernon counties has been Mark M. Woodson, now postmaster at Panama, and a brother of ex-State Inspector of Mines, C. C. Woodson, of this city. The people of Rich Hill, where he formerly resided and of his present home, remember well the bent form, misshapen almost from the semblance of man, which has painfully bowed its head half to earth and labored snail-like across the walks season after season, and when one day last month, it straightened to its full height, threw away the heavy butt of cane, which for years had been its only support from total helplessness, and walked erect, firmly, unhesitatingly about the two cities, people looked and wondered. The story of the remarkable case has become the marvel of the two counties. Exactly as Mr. Woodson told it to a Times reporter, it is here published:

"For ten years I have suffered the torments of the damned and have been a useless invalid; to-day, I am a well and hearty man, free from almost every touch of pain. I don't think man ever suffered more acute and constant agony than I have since 1884. The rheumatism started then in my right knee, and after weeks of suffering in bed, I was at last relieved sufficiently to arise, but it was only to get about on crutches for five years, the ailment having settled in the joint. Despite constant treatment of the most eminent physicians the rheumatism grew worse, and for the last four years I have been compelled to go about bent half toward the ground. In the winter of 1890-91, after the rheumatism had settled into its most chronic form, I went to Kansas City upon advice of my brother, and for six weeks I was treated in one of the largest and best known dispensaries of that city, but without the slightest improvement. Before I came home I secured a strong galvanic battery, this I used for months with the same result. In August, 1892, I went to St. Louis, and there conferred with the widely known Dr. Mudd of hospital practice fame, and Dr. Kale of the city hospital. None of them would take my case with any hope of affording me more than temporary relief, and so I came home, weak, doubled with pain, helpless and despondent.

"About this time my attention was called to the account of a remarkable cure of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, of locomotor ataxia, rheumatism and paralysis. I ordered some of the pills as an experiment. When I began to take them, the rheumatism had developed into a phase of paralysis; my leg from the thigh down was cold all the time and could not be kept warm. In a short time the pills were gone and so was the cane. I was able to attend to the duties of my office, to get about as a well and strong man. I was free from pain and I could enjoy a sound and restful night's sleep, something I had not known for ten years. To-day am practically, and, I firmly believe, permanently cured of my terrible and agonizing ailment. No magician of the Far East ever wrought the miracle with his wand that Dr. Williams's Pink Pills did for me."

To verify the story beyond question of doubt Mr. Woodson made the following affidavit:

COUNTY OF BATES, }

I, M. M. Woodson, being duly sworn on my oath, state that the following statements are true and correct as I verily believe.

LATEST FROM CLIPPERTON.

Strange Tales Told by a Sailor Who Was One of the Volant's Crew.

The men who came up from Clipperton island on the Volant will be paid off this morning and discharged, and whether any of them will return to the guano covered rock has not yet been decided. One of the men who went down on the Viking and remained on the island for several months told some remarkable stories of the treasure rock yesterday.

He corroborated the tale of the hungry crabs and said that the houses which had been put up had to be covered with tin to prevent the crustaceans from eating through the wood. It was so hot that the skin peeled off the men's backs through their light undershirts. There were any amount of eggs to be had, which were laid by birds resembling wild geese. The crabs would seize these eggs as fast as they were laid and make off with them.

"The harbor," said the Clipperton Robinson Crusoe, "is not a good one, and the water is full of sharks. When the wind blows offshore, it is impossible for a vessel's moorings to hold her. The Viking went away with about 50 tons short of what she ought to have taken, but that was the fault of the captain. He got scared and put to sea. The weather was so bad when the Volant was there that there was no use of staying, and she gave up trying to get a load. The sharks are very vicious and seem to be without fear, as they are in great numbers. When a boat is being rowed ashore, the man eaters jump out of the water and snap at a man.

"While the Volant was lying at Clipperton the strangest kind of a fish I ever saw came up astern of her. In shape it was something like a stingray, with long, ugly looking tail. It spread big wings that must have been at least 20 feet wide from tip to tip. The superintendent said it was a rayfish, and others called it a sunfish. It stuck its head up, then spread out its wings and skimmed along over the water.

"The island is nothing more than a big rock, honeycombed with the strangest kinds of shapes. At sunset some parts of it seemed a blazing mass of gold. If there is any truth in the stories about treasure being hidden there, we couldn't prove it, but you can bet we searched high and low for the pirates' booty."—San Francisco Chronicle.

LOST HIS RED BUTTON.

The Former Chinese Minister to This Country Degraded in Rank.

In a telegram from Peking published by The Chinese Mail it is said that an imperial edict has been issued announcing the degradation of Tsui Kwo Yui, the former Chinese minister to the United States, Spain and Peru, from the post of "tso shu tsze"—senior deputy supervisor of instruction—to that of "chung wan"—undersecretary of the Hanlin college—as well as the deprivation of the red button of second rank, with which he had been honored by the emperor on the occasion of his being accredited to the courts of the United States, Spain and Peru.

The issue of this edict has been the result of Yui's incompetency in the discharge of the duties of "tso shu tsze" as well as of his failure in passing the recent special examination for promotion among the members of the Hanlin college. This special examination was instituted at the instance of the board of censors with a view to classifying the members of the Hanlin college and to investigate their special conduct and also for the purpose of recommending promotion. Consequently the persons examined have after due examination been divided into three classes. Those of the first two classes have either received their promotion or appropriate imperial rewards of silk pieces, but Tsui Kwo Yui, who stands first in the third class, has lost his red button and has suffered the above mentioned degradation in his official rank.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 25, 1894.

Mrs. Caroline M. Woodward has been nominated for Congress by the Democrats of the Fourth Nebraska District.

Three victories out of twelve is the Vigilant's record, thus far. Nothing to be specially proud of, but it shows that we can beat the British in their own waters a quarter of the time, and that is a good deal more than they have been able to do when they've come over here.

Senator Hill, champion of the President, defender of the faith and expounder of the tenets of pure Democracy, would not attend yesterday's caucus of Democratic Senators on the tariff situation. Mr. Hill's objections to the income tax are insuperable and he will have no part in tariff legislation with an income tax rider.

Gorman's abandonment of Hill and his support of Cleveland insured the latter's nomination at Chicago in 1892. Perhaps a recollection of that incident intensifies the grim humor, which Mr. Hill must feel at the turn of affairs which makes it possible for him to rebuke Gorman for his attacks on the man whom he helped make President.

The outlook for tariff legislation isn't bright, but the situation is by no means hopeless. While the fight over the repeal of the silver purchase law was pending, it looked for days as if the enemies of repeal must win, but the right finally triumphed. And in those dark days there were Democratic Senators among the silver men who were a great deal madder than Senator Gorman has been this week.

It is believed that the vessel having on board the Wellman polar expedition has been caught in an ice pack in the Arctic seas and that all on board have perished. If the fears for the expedition prove well founded much will be said of the folly of risking valuable lives in the useless work of Arctic exploration, but history will quickly repeat itself and, in a year or two, other adventurous spirits will be tempting fate by pressing toward the pole.

The action of the Common Council in refusing to consider the bids for street lighting, and in advertising for new bids, is exciting considerable comment about town. No explanation of this peculiar disposition of the lighting question having been offered, people naturally put their own construction upon it. Another thing that puzzles everybody is to know what object there can be in paying for 2,000 candle power lamps, in a town as full of trees as is Middletown, when only a small area can be lighted by each lamp. What Middletown most needs is more low power lamps and the assurance that it pays only for what it gets.

The Newburgh Small-pox Cases.

Newburgh's Board of Health has removed the boy Heuthe, afflicted with small-pox to the pest house, quarantined his home and fumigated the premises.

In the case of Mrs. Gaskell two other families moved out when they found out the nature of her disease and her children were also taken to another part of the city. The Board decided to let her remain at home bring back the children and the other families, quarantine the premises, and fumigate the house in which they have been staying.

Where's the Use of Living

if you can't live right. If one does without the refinements and amusements he might as well be a turnip. Human vegetation isn't life; mere existence isn't living. People grub along and skimp and save as if they were going to live here forever. They give up the good things of to-day for the "mirage" to-morrow.

"ADAMANT" WALL PLASTER!
The New, Cheap Substitute for Common Plaster.

It is very hard and very adhesive; it does away with the warping and shrinkage of doors and sashings, and the building is not saturated with water, as it necessarily must be when common plaster is used; it costs originally but little more than lime plaster, and in the end its superior qualities make it immeasurably cheaper; it saves waiting several weeks or months for the buildings to dry out; it does not crack or fall off, even in the case of leakage; it is applied easily by any good plasterer; it is the only material with which repairing can be done neatly and "to stay."

SUCCESS WITH SUMMER BOARDERS

means attention to little things. A great deal depends upon the table, not merely the abundance of the food, but its quality, the skill with which it is prepared and the neatness and taste with which it is served. Then comes the question of dessert. It is the dessert which leaves the most lasting impression. A dish of good Ice Cream is relished by almost everyone, but the Ice Cream MUST BE GOOD. Above all the Flavor must be perfect. Don't use poor Flavors at any price. The palate is quick to note an insult of this kind. It is the Flavor which makes or mars the Ice Cream. McMonagle & Rogers' Pure Extract Vanilla makes the Ice Cream a success every time. For many years it has been the favorite with the best housekeepers in America. It is sold by the best grocers from Maine to California.

HIS LIFE CRUSHED OUT.

Machinist Reynolds Fatal y Injured at the Straw Hat Works—Internal Hemorrhages Cause His Death at Thrall Hospital.

John E. Reynolds, machinst at the Middletown Straw Hat Works, met with an accident at the factory about 5:30 o'clock, yesterday afternoon, receiving injuries, from the effects of which he died, at 10.30 o'clock last night.

Mr. Reynolds, with two fellow workman, was engaged in moving one of the 1000 pound hydraulic presses, from one portion of the room to another, when the heavy piece of machinery toppled over, falling upon Mr. Reynolds and pinning him to the floor.

His cries and the noise made by the fall, summoned the proprietor, Mr. H. C. Benson, and several workman who were in the building. The united efforts of six men were required to lift the press from Mr. Reynold's leg.

It was evident that he was very seriously injured and messengers were hurriedly sent out in all directions for physicians, and in a very short time, Drs. Pillsbury, Douglas, Mills and Hanmer were in attendance.

Dr. Pillsbury made an examination and found a large tumor in the left groin, which he stated to be caused by a ruptured blood vessel and directed the removal of the injured man to Thrall Hospital. The tumor was opened and about a quart of blood turned out. The femoral artery and vein required tying. There was also a fracture of the left leg at the ankle. A natural result of tying the main artery and vein of the leg within the abdomen, would be mortification of the leg. The patient was kept alive during the operation by frequent hypodermics of whiskey.

After the operation, Mr. Reynolds, regained consciousness, and recognized his wife, who had been summoned. He appeared to be resting comfortably until at 10:30, when he again commenced to bleed internally, and died in a few minutes. The body was afterwards removed to his late residence, No. 265 North street.

Mr. Reynolds was born in West Upton, Massachusetts, about twenty-eight years ago. He came to this city when the straw hat works first opened and has been in the employment of the company ever since. He was married April 15, 1887, to Miss Lina Atwood, an operator in the factory and a native of Provincetown, Mass. Three children were the result of the union, all of whom survive, Clearton aged six, Roland aged three, and Irene aged one. He is also survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Reynolds, of West Upton, and four brothers, two of whom are at home, and two, Thomas and Daniel reside in this city.

Mr. Reynolds was a prominent member of Middletown Lodge and Orange Encampment, I. O. O. F., and of Hoffman Lodge, F. & A. M. His sudden and untimely death has cast a gloom over the members of those organizations with whom he was deservedly popular.

The funeral arrangements have not yet been completed, but will be announced as soon as his relatives in Massachussetts have been heard from.

Mr. Reynolds held two policies for $2,500 each, in the Northwestern Life Insurance Co., and the Mercantile Benefit Association.

Some of the officers, stockholders and employes of the Hogan Boiler Company had a jubilee over the satisfactory results of the test of the first boiler turned out from the factory, at the Russell House, last evening.

It was an impromptu affair, Mr. Hogan inviting those whom he could reach to partake of refreshments with him.

There were present President John J. Hogan, Secretary and Treasurer S. S. Mallett, Stockholders C. Macardell, Geo. N. Clemson, Elwin McWilliams and Mr. Partridge; Prof. R. C. BEFORE THE RECORDER

A Farm Hand's Expensive Day Off—Fined for Abusing George Hasbrouck

David Graham, a farm hand employed by Mr. Bryan Conlin, of near Scotchtown, came to this city, yesterday morning, with a horse and wagon belonging to his employer. He delivered two cans of milk at Berry's creamery, after which he tied the horse on Cortland street and proceeded to get full. At 5 o'clock in the afternoon the police were notified that the horse was suffering and took charge of it. The man was subsequently found on Prince street in a beastly state of intoxication, and was locked up. His employer paid a five dollar fine for him this morning.

George Hasbrouck, colored, caused the arrest of Mary Brown, white, for using abusive and threatening language. The woman was fined $5, which she paid, and preferred charges of a similar nature against Hasbrouck.

TO GET ANOTHER INJUNCTION.

Well Founded Rumors That the Railway Company Will be Enjoined from Operating Its Benton Avenue Line.

It is given out on very good authority, that the opponents of a street railway in Benton avenue are preparing to secure an injunction restraining the Middletown-Goshen Traction Company from operating its line in that street

If this be true the objectors will have the satisfaction of preventing the people from riding through the street until such time as the courts decree differently, but the people will have the satisfaction of knowing that all the courts in christendom cannot prevent them from walking through the street from the Academy avenue line to the Sprague avenue track and that eventually the child's play will come to an end and they will ride through the street on electric cars.

HAPPY FRESH AIR CHILDREN.

A Party from This City Visit Those Quartered at Otisville.

A party of twenty children, fourteen of the fresh air band, and six of this city, drove to Otisville yesterday, to visit the twelve children on Mr. Dodd's farm. They found the Otisville contingent enthusiastic over their Orange county quarters, and visibly improved in appearance.

"Please," was the general cry, "let me stay two weeks longer. I don't want to go back next Wednesday." Mr. Dodd brought out cake and milk galore, and regaled the children after they had romped about the fields for an hour.

It would have rejoiced the hearts of the kind people who have enabled these little New Yorkers to come up here, had they witnessed the uproarious excitement of these little inhabitants of the Eighth Ward when turned loose in Mr. Dodd's beautiful orchard.

A Very Successful Fisherman.

Mr. Jack Read, of New York, who is spending the summer at Towner Villa, Monticello, writes to a friend in this city that he came in, Monday, from a day's fishing, with forty seven good sized fish. Among them were several black bass, which weighed from two to two-and-a-half pounds, and several pickerel which weighed four and five pounds.

REACHED FOR HIS DRINK.

And So Walt Pink Tried to Carve Him.

Walt Pink, of Newburgh, was drinking at the bar at Groveville Park, Monday afternoon, when a man reached for his drink. Pink, like the "tribe of Finn" in Bret Harte's poem, "knew his own whiskey skin," and resented the attempt to appropriate it by drawing a knife and lunging it at the impudent stranger. Only a slight wound was made in the man's side, but Pink's knife, which wasn't intended for use in carving people, shut up on his hand and almost cut off one of his fingers.

From the Kingston Leader.

"Bill Hank" LaForge, recently acquitted of murdering his wife, has returned to his old home at Crawford, Ulster county, and is once more engaged in picking and selling huckleberries. A VETERAN'S VERDICT.

The War is Over. A Well-known Soldier, Correspondent and Journalist Makes a Disclosure.

Indiana contributed her thousands of brave soldiers to the war, and no state bears a better record in that respect than it does. In literature it is rapidly acquiring an enviable place. In war and literature Solomon Yewell, well known as a writer as "Sol," has won an honorable position. During the late war he was a member of Co. M, 2d N. Y. Cavalry and of the 13th Indiana Infantry Volunteers. Regarding an important circumstance he writes as follows:

"Several of us old veterans here are using Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, Heart Cure and Nerve and Liver Pills all of them giving splendid satisfaction. In fact, we have never used remedies that compare with them. Of the Pills we must say they are the best combination of the qualities required in a preparation of the nature we have ever known. We have none but words of praise for them. They are the outgrowth of a new principle in medicine, and tone up the system wonderfully. We say to all, try these remedies." —Solomon Yewell, Marion, Ind., Dec. 5, 1892.

These remedies are sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee, or sent direct by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles $5, express prepaid. They positively contain neither opiates nor dangerous drugs.

RISKED LIFE AND LOST.

The Man Who Permitted Doctors to Bore Into His Stomach.

Ferdinand Pietrich, the man who sold himself to South American surgeons, is dead. Here is the story: Last August a man named Osbaldeston advertised in the New York papers for a man who would consent to go down to Guayaquil, Ecuador, and there submit to an experimental operation by two South American doctors. Osbaldeston acted as agent for those physicians. It was illustrative of the hard times that more than 120 answers were received.

The operation in question was simply an incision in the stomach, through which the action of the gastric juices might be observed. The cavity thus made was about the size of a hazel nut. Tubes of gold and silver were inserted, and through these the nourishment taken by the patient was forced, the digestive process being marked by the aid of an electric light. Incidental to the operation certain chemical substances were administered to the patient through the tube to ascertain positively the action of drugs in combination with each other.

Among the 120 persons who answered the advertisement was a well knit, powerful looking fellow who had been a sailor. He was about 5 feet 8 inches in height, weighed about 180 pounds, looked hard and wiry and was active as a cat. Osbaldeston decided that he would do. His name was Ferdinand Pietrich. The first week in September Pietrich sailed for Guayaquil. There for four or five weeks he remained under medical care in preparation for the ordeal, and it was the second or third week in October before the chief surgeon, Dr. Adele Ajaico, ventured to perform the operation.

Osbaldeston has received information that the operation had been completely successful and that the patient was on the road to recovery when he took to drink. Under these conditions it became necessary to stop the treatment for a time, and in this interval Pietrich while sitting on the battlements of a fortress one morning was sunstruck and died within two hours. He was alone in the world, and it does not appear that he ever received the money for which he had risked his life or in fact anything beyond his traveling expenses.—New York Letter.

COWED BY A REDHOT IRON.

Lioness Victoria Was Then Whipped, and Her Mate Nero Did His Tricks.

A few persons saw a thrilling exhibition at the London zoo before the regular performance began the other afternoon. Mlle. Beatrice, who was recently bitten in the face by the lion Nero, went into his cage for the first time since then. Nero was in an ugly temper, and his mate, Victoria, when the woman tamer stepped upon the steps leading into the cage, sprang against the door and remained in front of it with uplifted paw and mouth wide open.

Mlle. Beatrice tried to drive the lioness back with a whip, but Victoria bit and struck at the whip and roared with rage. A blank cartridge discharged squarely in her mouth by Mlle. Beatrice intensified the brute's rage.

Manager Francis Ferreri then brought an iron bar redhot at one end. A touch of this had the desired effect, and Victoria withdrew to the other end of the cage, and Mlle. Beatrice entered. She whipped the lioness severely. Nero roared, but he was as much in fear of the hot iron as Victoria. Half a dozen attendants covered the two lions with revolvers loaded with ball cartridges while Mlle. Beatrice made Nero go through his tricks. She omitted the kissing act, in the performance of which she was bitten three weeks ago. She will always carry the scars of that bite. Nero is 4 years old and always appeared perfectly docile until his attack upon Mlle. Beatrice.—London Standard.

THE BIGGEST WHEEL.

The English Are to Build One That Will Surpass the Ferris.

English writers just now are gloating over the fact that the great wheel which is now being built at Earl's court according to the plans of Lieutenant J. W. Graydon is to be considerably larger than the Ferris wheel which was shown at the World's fair in Chicago. The British wheel will be 300 feet in diameter, whereas the Ferris wheel measured only 200 feet across. It will be able to hold 1,600 persons, and the Ferris wheel could accommodate only 1,368 at a time.

The big wheel at Earl's court is also different from the Ferris wheel in respect to the towers which support the axle on each side of the wheel. They will be over 170 feet high, and four stories will contain saloons and will be connected with outside elevators as well as staircases. The steel axle, which is seven feet in diameter, will have a passage through it.

Of course it is expected that the masses in London will avail themselves of this opportunity to enjoy a new recreation. The carriages and cars will be so arranged that each one will hold 40 persons and may be entered at eight different places. Each turn of the wheel will take about 20 minutes, and there will be five stops. The wheel will be probably in operation some time in July or August.

China's Boy Emperor In Danger.

A letter dated Peking speaks of the disquiet felt among the Chinese on account of the projected changes to be made in the ruler of the empire. The letter says: "The approaching celebration of the sixtieth birthday of the empress dowager promises to be a great event. Millions of taels are in preparation, but the country can ill afford the money. There is a rumor going that the air is full of intrigue. There is to be a change of rulers. The present young ruler was put on the throne by intrigue. Many high officials would, propose, as it is said, to replace him by [illegible]

Not In Her Set.

A lady went to get a check cashed at a bank where she was entirely unknown.

"It will be impossible for me to give you the money, madam," said the teller politely, "unless you can identify yourself in some way."

"But I am Miss C——!" said the lady.

"Certainly, but it will be necessary for some one whom we know to give you an introduction to us."

She drew back and regarded him haughtily.

"But, sir," she said in what has been called "a tone of spurn," "I do not wish to know you!"—Life.

Japan's Great Artist.

Meizan is the name of Japan's greatest decorator of Satsuma art ware. A writer on the subject says Meizan is beyond question the first artist in Japan. No one can blend colors as harmoniously or paint flowers so delicately. No one is such a master of design as applied to borders. No one save Meizan, to put the case concretely, knows how to fill a bowl 2½ inches in diameter with 2,000 cho-cho, or butterflies, making each distinct and a thing of beauty.—Philadelphia Press.

His Gentle Wit.

She shook her head sadly when he had asked a fateful question.

"I wish you were all the world," he sighed.

"You said I was that to you once," she ventured coquettishly.

"Yes, but I don't think so now."

"No?"

"No, for all the world loves a lover," and his gentle wit won her over to a reconsideration of the question.—Detroit Free Press.

A sentence from a review of a novel printed in The Queen, an English publication, is suggestive. It ran, "The tale is a nicely told one, and no girl who has the responsibility of making out suitable library lists for her mother's reading need feel any hesitation about including it among the novels."

One hundred domestic servants are killed annually in England in the process of window cleaning. An invention recently patented is a window of which the outside may be cleaned without exposing the cleaner to any chance of a tumble.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 Cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. is on every wrapper.

A FEW FEATURES.

Which the Newspaper Man Frankly Said He Objected To.

"I trust you are pleased with my bathing facilities," said the proprietor of a bathing establishment, who was angling for a free puff, to the newspaper man.

"I regret to say," said the newspaper man, "that there are some features about your establishment to which I cannot give the unqualified sanction of my approval."

"I am surprised," said the bathing proprietor. "Tell me some of these features, and I will have them remedied at once."

"Well, the gas came in and nibbled at my toes while I was disrobing, which was not entirely agreeable."

"I am very sorry," said the proprietor. "I hope there was nothing else to annoy you."

"Oh, nothing in particular. Only a man in the next compartment reached over and took my gold watch and chain. I am a very sensitive man, and a little annoyance like this is apt to work me up."

"Well, I am sure I regret this very much," said the proprietor. "I hope there was nothing else to which you could take the slightest exception."

"Well, no," said the newspaper man. "I suppose there is nothing else worth mentioning. Only while I was in bathing some one stole my clothes. But as I took the suit in the next compartment, which belonged to a much larger man than I am, and hence contained a yard or two more of cloth than my own suit, I will not complain."

"I am sorry," said the proprietor, "but I"—

"Of course," broke in the newspaper man, "your towels were somewhat wetter than the water, but then one expects the ocean to be rather dry at this season of the year. Then your sea serpent, which you keep about the premises, I thought was inclined to be a little too playful and familiar with me, as I had never met him before in the world. It is rather awkward, too, to have a ship run into you while you are trying to tread water, and in a certain sense it interferes with one's sport, and besides it seems to me that three sharks are a trifle too many for one bathing establishment."

"Then I fear," said the proprietor, "you will not be able to speak a good word for my establishment in your very readable and enterprising paper?"

"Oh, yes," said the newspaper man. "I shall be pleased to state in my readable and enterprising paper that you have a very large ocean connected with your establishment—in fact, one of the largest oceans that can be found in this county."—New York World.

A Train Incident.

"I knowed a man," remarked the stranger in the end of the seat to the drummer over by the window, "that left his farm and started out west to grow up with the country and git rich."

"Did he have any money?" inquired the drummer.

"He had upward of $2,000 in cash."

"Well, he ought to be rich by this time."

"Don't know about that. Anyway before he had gone 200 miles he met some three card monte men, and the first thing he knowed they had all his money, and he didn't have nothing much but experience and the clothes on his back."

"That must have been a long time ago."

"About three days."

"Great Scott, man," exclaimed the drummer, "you don't mean to tell me that in this enlightened age there is a big enough fool to get stuck that way?"

"I've heard there was a few left," admitted the stranger.

"Well, by George, I'd give a dollar, straight, to see one, just for the curiosity of the thing."

The stranger took his feet in out of the aisle and faced the drummer.

"Gimme the dollar," he said sheepishly, "and take a look at me. I'm on my way back home now, and that dollar'll seem bigger'n a cart wheel."—Detroit Free Press.

THE HOGAN BOILER.

SATISFACTORY RESULTS OF PROF. CARPENTER'S TESTS.

The Boiler at the State Hospital More Than Meets All Requirements—Economical, Efficient, Safe and Convenient—Built to Develop 350 Horse Power and Run Up to 600 Horse Power—Advantages Over Other Boilers—Sketch of Mr. J. J. Hogan, Its Inventor.

Prof. R. C. Carpenter, of Cornell, assisted by Mr. W. R. Eckart, of California, one of the students in the University, has been making an exhaustive series of tests of the Hogan boiler, recently installed at the State Hospital, in this city.

Prof. Carpenter makes the following statement of the results of these tests:

"These tests were undertaken for the purpose of ascertaining the economy, capacity and character of construction of this boiler. They were of various kinds, and were intended to show any possible weak points in either design or construction.

"Tests were made with various kinds of coal in order to determine the boiler's adapability to the various grades and quality of fuel. The coal used was such as is commonly used by manufacturers and in each case was low in price and poor in quality, so that the records obtained cannot in any sense be considered as showing the boiler's highest possible economical performance. On the other hand, it is quite certain that the results obtained during the tests, will hardly equal what will be developed when the boiler is running regularly and the firemen have had opportunity to become skillful in the operation of the plant.

"It may not be generally known that, theoretically, one pound of pure carbon, idealistic coal, is capable of evaporating fourteen and one half pounds of water at boiling temperature. This well known standard of perfection is the guage to which all boiler tests are referred. In converting the heat existing in coal into steam inevitable losses are met with, due to the heat taken up by the chimney and to the heat dissipated into space. These losses seem to aggregate, with the best conditions in existing boiler plants, twenty per cent., and usually run from thirty-five to forty per cent.

"The following explanation may serve to show what is possible, how much is possible and to give an idea of relatively good and poor boiler performance. The good points in boiler construction are, aside from capacity, safety, ability to produce steam, economy in use of fuel, durability, rapid steaming and facility for making repairs in case of accident.

WHAT THE TESTS SHOWED.

"The various tests were made with the end in view of ascertaining the qualities of the boiler in each and every direction; briefly it may be said that the results were as follows; The boiler, which was constructed to develop 350 horse power, was worked to a capacity of 600 horse power, with inferior coal and with a grate unsatisfactory in many respects.

"The boiler was designed to work at a pressure of 90 pounds; during one of the tests a pressure of 126 pounds was carried with no signs of structural weakness. Throughout all of the tests the steam has been almost free from water and unusually dry, even when the boiler was exhausting all the steam made into the open air. The economy has in every case, when all the conditions are considered, been very high.—in fact I may say unusually high,—very near to the highest possible limit.

VERY FAST STEAM MAKING.

"The ability developed to make steam rapidly is quite extraordinory. For starting with cold water, with a wood fire, a pressure of twelve pounds of steam was produced in seventeen minutes, and without detriment to the boiler.

"A test was made with soft coal, which although not altogether conclusive, still seems to show that the peculiar construction of the furnace gives the boiler rare capacity as a smoke consumer.

NO WEAK POINTS DEVELOPED.

"In conclusion it may be said that the tests which were unusually severe in their nature failed to develop any weak points in design or construction, on the contrary they seem to show that the claims of Mr. Hogan as to rapid circulation in the boiler are true, and they indicate a prosperous and extensive business for the Hogan Boiler Company."

It is to be said that the above, from Prof. Carpenter, is merely an offhand, general summary. Prof. Carpenter's complete and detailed scientific, tabulated report, will not be ready for several days.

SOME POINTS ABOUT BOILERS.

In the construction of a steam boiler the designer's first effort is to secure perfect combustion of the fuel used, that is all the heat which the fuel is capable of producing can be obtained. This condition of perfect combustion makes it necessary to have a hot fire. In order to obtain this the fire must not be cooled until combustion is complete.

Boilers are divided into two great classes, in the first of which the fire is surrounded by the water. These are called internally fired. To this class belong the Scotch-marine, the locomotive and the Lancashire boilers. Externally fired boilers have the heat of the fire applied first to the external surface and their fires are not surrounded by water.

In both types of boilers the common practice is to bring the cold surfaces so near the fire that it is seriously cooled and the gases from the fuel are cooled before they have time to burn completely, and thus produce the maximum heat possible.

In the boilers just mentioned, the common practice is to bring the water surfaces within from twelve to twenty-four inches of the fire and often on the sides these water surfaces actually touch the fuel.

HOW PERFECT COMBUSTION IS SECURED.

In the Hogan boiler the practice is to make the vertical space between the fire and the water surfaces from three to five feet, while the space between the tubes is from two and a half to four inches. This construction surrounds each tube by a volume of heated gas four times as great as that of the water contained within it. In a word the gases are given ample space and time for perfect combustion before any attempt is made to reduce their temperature.

A high initial heat having been thus obtained, another great advantage follows. Heat passes most rapidly when the difference of temperature is greatest. The very hot fire, therefore with its correspondingly hot gases will most quickly impart heat to the water when an opportunity is given, and will do so more rapidly.

JOHN J. HOGAN, IN 1894.

RAPID ABSORPTION OF HEAT.

The next point after having provided a high temperature by means of perfect combustion, is to find means for the rapid absorption of the heat. Heating surfaces in ordinary boilers are limited in their action first, by the speed with which water converted into steam can be replaced and second, by the rapidity with which the steam can be separated from the water. The limitation of these two actions in the ordinary form of boiler is a common cause of their ultimate destruction, while it also limits their capacity.

SEPARATION OF STEAM AND WATER

The Hogan boiler is so designed that steam and water can separate with a freedom and speed never before known, while the provisions for replacing water converted into steam seem to be in actual practice quite unlimited. This latter feature constitutes what is known technically as the circulation.

It would be difficult to show without diagrams how this has been accomplished by the simple arrangement of the heating surfaces above the fire and the provision of ample separating space, in which steam and water instantly part company, without interfering with each other.

This rapid separation of water and steam and very rapid circulation in all parts of the Hogan boiler is not in any way interfered with, even when the boiler is forced to its utmost capacity. This fact was clearly shown in several of the tests conducted for the purpose of deciding the question.

CANNOT SPRING LEAKS.

In the construction of this boiler Mr. Hogan has taken advantage of the structural possibilities in such a way as to make it impossible to produce leaks by hard firing. Indeed there are no strains set up by the action of the heat on the parts, since every portion is permitted to expand with perfect freedom. This insures durability.

DRY STEAM.

From the engineering standpoint the next important matter is the production of dry steam. The almost instantaneous evaporation of steam from the water and the means which are employed to permit steam to pass away freely, without dragging water along with it, in the form of a spray or mist, are such as to insure the much desired quality of dryness under all conditions.

OTHER POINTS OF ADVANTAGE.

Mud drums are provided for the collection of any sediment that there may be in the water and there are also feed water heaters by which the water is heated before it is delivered to the boiler and at the same time freed from lime and other impurities. Contrary to the usual practice, these heaters are easily accessible and in this respect the whole boiler is a model, for all parts subject to any wear are easily replaceable at a small expense and with insignificant delay.

ADVANTAGES OF THE HOGAN BOILER.

The tests show conclusively that the Hogan boiler possesses many advantages over all other boilers and in some respects is absolutely unique, no other boiler approaching it. The advantages, which the Hogan boiler has been shown to have may, thus be summarized:

Economy of fuel, eighty per cent. of heat utilized.

Circulation of water, prolongs life of boiler.

Self cleaning to a great extent, possibly absolutely so

Consumption of soft coal smoke.

Safety; cannot be injured by fire if supplied with proper amount of water.

Occupies less floor space, less cubic feet and weighs less important especially for marine work.

Purifiers allow of the use of dirty water, possibly sea water.

Capacity from 200 to 1,000 horse power with good economy; high capacity for giving dry steam; especially adapted for electric work.

Quick steaming qualities.

This boiler can be run entirely on wood, including starting, with cold water. Excellent for portable boilers.

Circulation of water prevents straining from expansion and contraction.

All parts so arranged as to prevent rust from moisture

Simplicity of cleaning and replacing all parts including tubes.

Large combustion chamber; favorable in case of bursting tubes.

Economy in construction.

Ease of transportation

Durability of highest order.

Extra dry steam.

Perfectly steady water level

JOHN J. HOGAN, IN 1872.

SKETCH OF MR. J. J. HOGAN.

Mr. James J. Hogan, the inventor of the Hogan boiler and the President of the company that manufactures it, was born in Ireland, where his father owned a large landed estate. His father was a man of progressive ideas and employed in his agricultural operations farm machinery of various kinds. His son's taste for mechanics was displayed by the interest which he showed in this machinery, while but a mere lad, and was developed by his study of it. When only fourteen years of age, with no assistance than such as could be rendered by an old woman, he took apart a traction engine that had got out of order, repaired it, and put it together again so that it did good work.

LIBERALLY EDUCATED.

He was educated at colleges in Dublin and Belgium, and when the time came for choosing a career, the natural bent of his mind suggested mechanical engineering. His father had, however, different plans for him, but a friend, Sir William Fairbairn, who recognized his rare mechanical genius, earnestly advised that he be allowed to follow his natural inclinations and his suggestion, that the young man be apprenticed to the Reading Works, near London, to learn mechanical engineering, was at last adopted.

The Reading Iron Works was at that time one of the foremost establishments of its kind in England and £300 was paid by Mr. Hogan's father as his son's apprenticeship fee. Boilers and engines were specialties of the Reading Works and for years it carried off the first prizes for its exhibits of economical boilers and engines at the Royal shows. The nozzle boiler, the first boiler in which circulation was attended to, was built at the Reading Works and thus, at the very beginning of his career, Mr. Hogan's attention was directed to the branch of mechanical engineering to which he has devoted so much time and study and in which he has achieved such wonderful results.

PROPRIETOR OF A BOILER SHOP.

In 1870, at the completion of his apprenticeship, he went to Stockton-on-Tees, in the North of England and devoted two years to marine engineering on land and on sea. He then invested in a boiler shop in Nottingham, which employed seventy or eighty men. This business he carried on for three years, until the land on which the shop stood was taken for a freight yard by the Great Northern railroad, under condemnation proceedings.

COMES TO THE UNITED STATES.

Believing that the United States offered greater opportunities than England, Mr. Hogan, after closing out his Nottingham interests, came to this country, and for five or six years was engaged with Alexander S. Holley in the erection of Bessemer steel plants in Scranton and St. Louis. He then engaged in the steam heating business in New York city, and his wide experience and practical knowledge made plain to him many defects and shortcomings in the boilers in general use, while his scientific attainments and inventive genius showed how those defects could be remedied or avoided and greater economy and efficiency attained.

Strange to say Mr. Hogan had no wish to figure as an inventor, and it was only at the urgent request of practical men, who had been impressed by the soundness of his theories and the value of the conclusions to which they pointed, that he consented to develop his ideas and embody the improvements they suggested in a boiler constructed on different principles from any then in use.

CIRCULATION OF HOT WATER.

The circulation of hot water was the idea that lay back of all Mr. Hogan's proposed improvements on existing systems, and the first result of his experiments was the production of a low pressure boiler for domestic heating which was a most pronounced success from the very start. It has been on the market but a few years, but several thousand are already in use, giving most perfect satisfaction and meeting every claim that is made for them, a maximum of efficiency and a minimum of cost for fuel. These domestic heaters are manufactured under royalty by the Abram Cox Stove Company, of Philadelphia.

Mr. Hogan published the results of his experiments in hot water circulation and this attracted wide attention among scientists and mechanics and his articles and the cuts that illustrated in many of the scientific and technical journals of this country and Europe, and his theories were discussed all over the world.

THE POWER BOILER DESIGNED.

The experiments made preliminary to the construction of the low pressure boiler for heating purposes led naturally to their extension and application to steam power boilers. Satisfied that his theories in regard to circulation were correct and practicable, Mr. Hogan designed the power boiler and though he might have had it manufactured under royalty on most favorable terms he was so convinced of the monetary value of the invention that he determined to control its manufacture and to that end organized the Hogan Boiler Company.

LOCATED IN MIDDLETOWN.

The company while looking about for a location for its works received a number of flattering offers from cities and villages which desired to secure them. Mr. A. O. Kittredge, of Slate Hill, who had been a friend of Mr. Hogan for years and who was interested in the boiler company, suggested that Middletown would be a suitable place for the location of the works. Mr. Hogan and his business associates came here and looked over the ground. They were pleased with Middletown's push and public spirit, satisfied with its railroad facilities and proximity to sources of supply, and found its citizens ready to meet them more than half way in taking a financial interest in the company. Negotiations were entered into with the Board of Trade and in a very short time all arrangements were concluded, a factory site on the Dolsontown road selected and purchased and the Hogan Boiler Company united its fortunes with Middletown.

A GREAT MECHANICAL ACHIEVEMENT.

In boiler making, it is the first boiler of any type or style that costs time and money and that tests the accuracy of design and the mechanical efficiency of its construction and it is a noteworthy fact that the boiler just put in operation at the State Hospital, though the first of its kind ever made, and though it is composed of hundreds of parts, was so carefully and so skillfully made, that it was put together as easily as a piece of machinery that had been taken apart to be cleaned, every piece fitting perfectly into the place designed for it. More than this, no defects of construction were developed under the severe tests, showing how carefully Mr. Hogan had watched all the mechanical details of its construction,

The Hogan boiler works has given employment to about thirty skilled mechanics since it got fairly under way. The wonderful success of the Hospital boiler insures a demand for the boilers on the part of the owners of manufacturing plants and others using steam power, who desire the best, most efficient and most economical boiler that will make the boiler works one of Middletown's most important industries.

Two Operations for Appendicitis.

Two operations for the removal of the vermiform appendix were performed at Hunt Hospital, in Port Jervis, yesterday, the patients being Lillian, the ten-year-old daughter of George Kern, of Sparrowbush, and Arthur Heart, a flagman on the Eastern Division of the Erie. Both operations were successful.

The Baker's Bill

Tells of Greatly Increased Appetite.

"It affords me great pleasure to tell not only the condition of my present health but also that of my whole family. A friend who knew of my poor health advised me to use Hood's Sarsaparilla. After two bottles a great change in my health was noticed. I do not have that tired feeling, no pain in the stomach, especially after eating, and in fact I feel like a new person and hold some pleasure in life. Every member of my family is using Hood's Sarsaparilla and with beneficial results, if I may judge by my baker's bill each week.
